CRATER LK. KLAMATH FALLS

Several years ago we traveled to Willamette Pass in southern Oregon. This rugged pass in the middle of nowhere, east of Eugene and south of Bend, turned into a superb trip. Oregon somehow has retained the essence of the sport of tour skiing in its own old world way. We stayed in a tiny little town right across from the local breakfast place and internet cafe then would head out to ski miles of trails with hardly another soul visible anywhere. One hundred miles south is the southern Oregon region, which has even more skiing and more of this Oregon down home character to offer. Crater Lake National Park is probably the best known tour ski destination in southern Oregon. Spectacular views and annual snowfall of over 40 feet at Lake Rim account for the park's popularity. Reliable snow makes the rim a good bet for early and late season ski tours. But southern Oregon, which extends south to the California border has much more to offer skiers. Many miles of ski trails in the Cascade Range and Siskiyou Mountains provide opportunities for a wide variety of tours and exceptional views. These include trails in the Umpqua, Winema, and Rogue River National Forests. Prominent peaks especially Mt. Thielsen, Mt McLoughlin, Mt Bailey, and Brown Mountain serve as landmarks on many ski tours. Most skiing in the region is at relatively high elevation, from 4,800' to 7,000'. We will be staying in Klamath Falls on this trip and venturing during the daylight hours to visit some of the highlights of the winter season in this area. Provided: Airfare, lodging, transit. Dates 1/19-23 Cost $731
