NOOKSACK RIVER FLOAT

The Nooksack River below the confluence of its major forks is cold and swift. Coming off the glaciers on Mt Baker, the river is usually milky in summer and fall due to the glacier flour it carries. Often clear in mid winter, it offers the finest views of Mt Baker of any river in the state. The lower river flows through a fertile agricultural area before emptying into Bellingham Bay and, via the Strait of Juan de Fuca and the Strait of Georgia, to the Pacific Ocean. We will be floating a section of the river made famous by the Bellingham Ski to Sea race. This is a good float for late in the summer since it is glacier fed from Mt. Shuksan and Baker; all it takes to keep the water levels up is warm weather. Provided: transit, raft gear. Date 9/14 cost $72
