SKATE CREEK SKI THROUGH

A few years ago while bicycling around the south side of Mt. Rainier on a beautiful sunny day, I stumbled across a road with great potential for a ski tour, and decided one day I would have to return to ski it. The road follows Skate Creek through its secluded and quiet valley, with little to disturb the science but the babbling brook, or the distraction of the sparkling snow on the trees. The evergreens, and at lower altitudes the deciduous trees overhang the road like they used to on Highway 9 before it was replaced by I-5, and the old two lane Snoqualmie Pass highway. That trip to the pass often took twice as long as it does today, but the scenery was so nice that it didn't seem to matter much. Perhaps life was just a little slower paced back then! This is a gentle downhill descent dropping about a 1,000 feet in the 12 miles or so it takes to reach the lower end of the route. The night before our ski through we will be staying in the historic "Whittaker's Bunkhouse" in Ashford. Provided: transit, lodging. Dates 1/5-6 Donation premium for "Adventurer Level" ($85+)
