GEM LAKES & ICY PEAKS

Only twice have I tried to make it up into this part of the state for a club ski trip. The second time there was too much snow to get high enough to get the real spectacular views. Now the access road has just been reopened after a massive bridge reconstruction project and six years of work. This part of the Cascades often gets overlooked but it has a higher concentration of major summits clustered in close proximity than almost any other part of the Cascade Range. Within a dozen miles of one of the ridges we are going to ski are giants like Whitehorse Mt, Three Fingers, Big Four, Sloan Peak, Monte Christo, Glacier, White Chuck, Black Mountain, Snow King and these are only the glaciated summits. There are several new areas we will be exploring here as well as the tried and true. This is a quick 2 day exploratory trip with some exceptional possibilities for stunning views. I call one of the areas we hope to get to Gem Lakes Ridge because of the names of the lakes. Lime Ridge runs NW from Glacier Peak and besides several major summits it has lakes named Crystal, Indigo, Emerald and Diamond with wonderful meadows separating each. The other part of the area we may get to includes Mt. Higgins and Segelson Ridge Provided: transit, lodging, maps. Dates: Thr-Sat 3/18-3/20 Premium for "Adventurer" level donation x2 ($170)
